Mark 10:17-22

Like the rich young ruler, when we misplace our hope and affections, we trade the joy and treasure of Christ for sorrow.

1. What the man got right

2. False Hope

3. Misplaced Affections

Mark 10:17-22

Like the rich young ruler, when we misplace our hope and affections, we trade the joy and treasure of Christ for sorrow.

1. What the man got right

2. False Hope

3. Misplaced Affections

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

Mark 10:17-22

1. What do you think led the man to chase after Jesus?
2. What kinds of things did the young man get right?
3. How are you at keeping eternal questions in mind? What things distract you from living in light of eternity?
4. As you read the passage, what symptoms of the man's misplaced hope can you find?
5. What are the things that you find yourself tempted to place your hope in? How might those things prove insufficient?
6. What, if it were taken from you, would leave you feeling stranded and hopeless?
7. If your weakest moments, what do your heart's affections drift towards?
8. What is the remedy for our misplaced hope and/or affections?
9. How can you use the truth of scripture as an offensive measure against false hope and misplaced affections?
